A photograph of a walk-in closet. The walls are white, and the floor is covered in large, square, tan-colored tiles. Metal wire shelving units are mounted on the walls. One unit is on the left wall, extending from the top towards the middle. Another unit is on the right wall, also extending from the top towards the middle. A third unit is mounted on the back wall, positioned lower than the others. The closet appears to be empty and well-lit.

A photograph of a modern playground. In the foreground, there is a large, light-colored wooden climbing structure with a green slide. To the left of the slide, there is a small, light-colored wooden structure with a green roof. The playground is surrounded by a green fence and a dense line of trees in the background.
